Are you passionate about teaching others?
Join the People Together program!

The People Together program encourages advocates to meet with students at local schools to present on ways to be inclusive and kind to people of all abilities. Advocates talk to students about their disability, as well as obstacles they have faced and overcome. In this program, advocates are encouraged to showcase ways they are similar to students through their likes, dislikes, employment, extracurricular activities, and more.

People Together participants should:

- Be comfortable with public speaking
- Have an interest in teaching others
- Be able to answer questions that students may ask in a timely manner
- Have independent transportation to and from events

Advocates who present at events, are paid an hourly minimum wage to cover the time they dedicate at each event.
